Shepherd Neame begin to use Smartstak

Britain's Oldest Brewer Shepherd Neame, based in Faversham Kent, have installed state of the art tall pack depalletisers and have chosen to use Smartstak as the most efficient packaging to maximise the performance of their filling lines.

Britain Oldest Brewer, who are still independently owned, have invested in their future brewing and filling capabilities.

Producing local Kentish Ales such as Bishops Finger and Spitfire have been the cornerstone of the companies success over the last 300 years, with more than 350 pubs in their estate the brewer have diversified and now produce major brands such as Orangeboom, Kingfisher and Asahi, under license.

All bottles delivered to Shepherd Neame use Smartstak which is the most cost effective method of glass packaging.
